Powder Coating Company | Central Michigan

This profitable finishing company powder coats piece parts for a variety of manufacturers across central Michigan. They also perform custom projects and maintain an electrostatic paint capability that allows them to finish built-in installations at customer sites. They serve a diverse customer base including manufacturers in material handling, automotive, outdoor products, and a range of other industries. The family-owned business was founded in 1989 and transitioned from on-site electrostatic painting to powder coating in 2003, giving them almost twenty years of experience in the industry and a long-term customer base.
